AS I passed by the City of Canton a few days ago I saw a Flag which was beautifully Colored and written Presented by the Passenger's to Captain O'SULLIVAN, of the steamer "Glengyle."
On inquiry into the cause I was informed that on the 1st Moon of this year, all the Kwang-tung Kujin, (Scholars of 2nd Literary degree) for the purpose of going to Pekin to undergo universal Literary Examination, took passage on board the steamer "Glengyle" which had been chartered by Kwong-shing-tye Hong. Although there were several steamers in the meanwhile lying at Canton River bound for the same Port but they all took passage by the "Glengyle," because she was large and strong, and the charterers were men of well known trustworthy characters, and also the passage money was moderate. During the voyage the passengers were treated with exceeding kindness by the Captain and provided with food and tea very properly. On arrival the Captain gave orders to the seamen to take special care of all the luggages belonging to the passengers and to assist them in taking them away. All the passengers said that since they have had Steamers in China waters, they never saw a Steamer whose crew treated the passengers better than the crew did in the "Glengyle." I was informed by some other persons that the Charterers, previous to the Steamers departure, had told Messrs. JARDINE, MATHESON & Co., owners of the "Glengyle," that the Passengers by her this time were all polite and learned Scholars, consequently the Captain was so kind to them.
This perhaps might be the case.
The Passengers were therefore united together in presenting the Flag to Captain O'SULLIVAN, in order to express their thanks to him for his kindness shown to them during the voyage to Tientsin, in order to wish that other Marine Masters would do the same as Captain O'SULLIVAN did.

A CARD.

PROFESSOR WHEELER, would respectfully attract the attention of the Hongkong Public to the importance of having the Hair Cut and Dressed in an Artistic manner and style, Appropriate to the Individual is the cut of the Hair; there can be no fixed or prevailing fashion without destroying almost universally the harmony of the tout ensemble. Indeed as diverse as is the contour of the human head and facial outline, just so peculiar should be the trim and arrangement of the Hair. This fact is acted upon by only those Hair-Cutters who possess an inherent judgment in matters of taste, cultivated and improved by incessant study and application. Of this rare class, Professor WHEELER, humbly claims to be one, and the Only One in this Colony, and he modestly but confidently invites all who may be distrustful of his ability to give him at least a trial before pronouncing an adverse opinion. He may be found at all hours of the day in his Apartments adjoining the Private Entrance of the Oriental Hotel.

The Adventure brings down the Head Quarters of the 67th and the detachment of the 99th who were left in the Taku forts. These troops we believe will proceed shortly to the Cape in the Tamar.

WE insert a letter on the subject of the Library, which our contemporary refused. The proceedings of the meeting at which the sale was decided, on were not fairly reported in the account furnished us. We cannot tell what Mr. Hayes said, but we can pretty well understand what he meant, for no one sees the library scattered with greater regret than he. He offered to join with a few others in a very handsome sum to save it. Our correspondent should remember that it may not suit Mr. Hayes' inclinations, nor yet accord with his ideas as to his duty to those with whom he is connected in business, to quarrel with people because of a difference of opinion.

WE have been favored with the perusal of a telegram from Calcutta under date of 3d inst, received per Emeu via Galle. Patna was quoted Rs. 883. None of the direct steamers from China had arrived. The French mail steamer now about due will not bring more than 20 chests of Bengal drug.

We are told that about 250 chests Malwa had been engaged for her however.

The tenor of Red Deer's letter caused us to examine the manuscript of the communication of "The Owl" (horned) on the subject of the bad French of the latter. We feared the fault lay at the door of our printer's devil, and so alas we find it. The manuscript has it pretty plainly, après une chasse inutile—the devil put it après une chape inutile.

How it came to pass that we did not see the last proofs of both letters, we do not know. Our orders are strict that such shall be submitted to us of all correspondence, and we have to apologise to both "The Owl" and "Red Deer" for several "perversions."

IN our shipping intelligence will be found a full account of the loss of the Fukkien, compiled from such authentic details as we have been enabled to glean. We trust we have presented this report in an intelligible shape, and that our nautical readers will be pleased to scrutinize it narrowly.

Capt. Johnson has lost his ship through an error in judgment; of that there is no doubt. Whether his explanation will be deemed a sufficient palliation by the Court of Enquiry about to be convened, it is not for us to say, but it seems clear that he followed a well defined plan, that he thought he knew perfectly well what he was about, but that his calculations were defeated by a tide on his broadside setting the contrary way to that which he expected.

In the meantime the public should extend towards Captain Johnson the fullest measure of commiseration. His admirable coolness and energy at such an awful juncture in saving the two hundred lives whom his error had placed in imminent jeopardy, are above all praise. Of that act the public can judge, of the nautical error they cannot. Let us therefore confine ourselves to giving an opinion consonant with our judgement and with our feelings, leaving the professional and nautical portion of the subject, to professional and nautical men, after these shall be placed in possession of the full facts of the case.

Nor is the first time within the limits of our knowledge where Capt. Johnson has in the hour of danger displayed those qualities which denote a strong heart and a fine sense of duty. Some years ago he commanded a ship called the Mastiff. He was on a voyage from San Francisco to this with a few Chinese passengers and a large amount of treasure. The ship caught fire—he not only put all the passengers and crew into the boats, but the treasure also. He shaped a course to Honolulu and on the way fell in with a ship, which took on board all the people and the treasure. This ship proceeded to Honolulu and impounded the treasure for salvage. Capt. Johnson managed the defence so well that only 5 per cent was awarded, the costs (if we remember right) being only $170. He paid the salvage and costs out of the treasure and reshipping the remainder brought it to Hongkong, where after making a fair distribution of the expenses incurred, every party received his treasure.

This affair was in our own hands and therefore we can speak of it with certainty. Had he gone to Singapore instead of to Honolulu, we tremble at the bare thought of German rapacity and ingenuity. However perhaps the underwriters are well served for on the occasion we speak of Capt. Johnson did not receive one cent—in fact nobody even thanked him.

WE have been furnished with reliable and important intelligence of what is going on up the East branch of the Canton River. The reader should be made aware, if not already acquainted with the fact, that the East branch referred to joins the main river a little below Whampoa on the right hand side going up. This Eastern branch has many large towns on its banks. The first arrived at is Shocklung, the second Poklo, the third Wychow, close to which is Kweishan, and then a long way further up is Lowlung. Much further on, but not on the East river, stands the important district city of Kah-ying-chow not far from the borders of the Fuhkien province. If the reader will keep these little geographical details in his head, he will be much the better able to comprehend what we are about to communicate.

On the 10th of this month, nine Lascars, Malays, or Manila men, arrived at the city of Pok-lo in charge of the Mandarins. The story which these men told ran to the effect that they had been lost in a ship which was wrecked in the late typhoon, on board of which were in all forty souls, all of whom perished except themselves. They managed to reach the shore, and fell into the hands of the Mandarins, who forwarded them on from one district town to another. On the 12th July they had reached Shocklung, after which all trace of them is lost. Their ultimate destination would of course be Hongkong—true from Shock-lung they would doubtless be sent to Canton, but they should have reached here long before this.

The people in the neighbourhood of Poklo appear to be in pretty active communication with the Taipings, who it is apprehended will shortly infest that district. These Taipings are veritable Changmaos, because our informant saw two of them who had been captured. The poor people about Poklo are mostly Hakkas, and these hail the coming of the insurgents as the approach of good times, whilst the wealthy and the better classes are filled with apprehension at the prospect and are removing their portable valuables. The Taipings had undoubtedly taken or had beleaguered Ka-ying-chow, the general impression being that they had taken it. The Poklo people appear to know all about the movements of the insurgents, and the account they give is as follows. That the city of Lowlung will shortly be attacked and must fall an easy prey. Being a place of great trade a large number of boats will fall as prize to the captors—with these the insurgent army will descend the East river taking Kweishan, Wychow, Poklo and Shocklung on the way. They will have little difficulty in capturing any of these places except Wychow, where a Mandarin force of 7,000 men (on paper) is supposed to be stationed.

After capturing Shocklung, Hongkong is to be attacked—a large quantity of ordnance is expected to form a portion of the booty, with which Canton is to be attacked and taken. Captain Nolloth had better disarrange this programme by sending a gun boat with a couple of dozen men up the East river—a rotten one will do.

Such is the rumor among the country people about Poklo. Whether the surrender of the Mo Wong has anything to do with the idea of the misunderstanding betwen the Fan Kweis and the Changmaos, we cannot tell. It is this hope of the poor that they may be benefitted by the Taipings turning every thing upside down, which causes the raids of the insurgents to be so calamitous and so successful.

WE are happy to find the question of the Government of Her Majesty's subjects in China and Japan exciting some attention. In the Evening Mail of 20th instant, there appeared a well written article which contained a most correct resume of the course of legislation adopted by the British Government with respect to this important question. It appeared as an original article, but was assuredly communicated, for the reason that the subject on which it treats is one that our contemporary is peculiarly ignorant about. Besides, he is no more capable of grasping any important subject in the concise and succinct manner developed in the article before us, than he is of flying. This may appear to be no affair of ours—if a contributor to the Evening Mail supplies an article to that paper which our contemporary selects to adopt with the author's consent, it may appear to display a bad feeling on our part to object; but yet when an assertion happens to be made which we take offence at because of its incorrectness, we submit that we have a right to attack the authorship of the article.

In summing up the code of Ordinances contained in the Order in Council of 13th June 1853, for the Government of H. M. subjects in China, the article runs "It had many and great "defects, the principal of which have been repeatedly pointed out and commented on in these "columns." When, where, on what occasion? The Order had become almost a dead letter until the suit of Moss versus Alcock revived it. On that occasion the Counsel for both sides appeared in Court with incorrect copies. We attached great importance to the document, because it bore on the policy of the Bruces, and we determined to publish it. We had some difficulty in obtaining an official copy, and we were finally compelled to apply to the Chief Justice. We then studied it and have since made a text book of it—in reviewing the blue books we never lost sight of it, and we have always inserted it in every copy of the Directory we have since published. We never detected our contemporary referring to the Order in Council containing these Ordinances in a manner which justified the conclusion that he had ever read it, or had made even the attempt to make himself acquainted with its details. How then in adopting a communicated article, can he set up such a pretence as the above objectionable lines imply? The writer of the article, knowing that he had read sundry remarks in a Hongkong paper pointing out the defects he refers to, doubtless came to the conclusion that one paper was the same as another, and therefore that the remark applied to both.

In the fourth page we reproduce an article from the London Times on the subject of the new Order in Council, establishing a Court at Shanghai, and repealing the Order above referred to. If the article which appeared in the columns of our contemporary, had appeared in the Times, and that which appeared in the "leading journal," had appeared in the Evening Mail, each would have found a position more worthy of its merits. It is a very strange thing whenever the Times commits itself to the manipulation of a subject with which we happen to be conversant, that we invariably find it hasty, ill-informed, and erratic. In the instance before us for instance, how can the Times say that no provision is made in the new Order in Council for the purpose of punishing smuggling? The whole of the VI section of the Order is devoted to this very point, commencing with the 34th clause thus. "If any British subject in China or Japan "violates, or fails to observe any stipulation "of any Treaty between Her Majesty, Her "heirs and successors, and the Emperor of "China or the Tycoon of Japan for the time "being in force, in respect of the violation "whereof any penalty is stipulated for in the "Treaty, he shall be deemed guilty of an of"fence against the Treaty, and on conviction "thereof under the Order, shall be liable to a "penalty not exceeding the penalty stipulat"ed for in the Treaty."

And then we should have supposed that a Journal of the acumen and intelligence laid claim to by the Times, might have discovered a valid reason for trading at the non-treaty ports in Japan being so strictly interdicted, whilst the Order is silent on the same subject with reference to China. Does not this point involve that bone of contention between the Tycoon and the Daimio Princes which forms such a bar to the progress of foreign intercourse? The Government of Japan is feudal —that of China patriarchal—the prohibition in one case is dictated by policy—the prohibition in the other is simply involved in a treaty right which even if violated simply pampers to Mandarin venality.

PARIS. 10th June, 1865.

I write these lines one leg in the tomb for to all appearance you will not receive them. Astrologers and Meteorologists having discovered, that a comet having a tail composed of Cyanhidric vapours will pass over the earth this month. Rispail himself the Camphor doctor has joined the sinister predictions to these mournful prophecies. Astronomers having a more modest reputation say that the plague of Siberia or rather Typhus which is now raging in France is owing to the perfidious emanations of this Comet bedeviled. The 12th of June is the fatal day of which we are to meet this disagreeable meteor, in 1857, the date was fixed for the 13th June. In the meantime Death, that comet which passes every day has taken away a great many celebrities this week. First comes M. Geffroy de Villeneuve, the Deputy, M. Gernier the talented professor who has replaced M. Villemain at the Sorbonne for the last 20 years, and who had but one regret when dying, viz that he was not an Academician, and then M. Theodor Bac who could not survive the loss of his son and who will remain celebrated not only on account of his political career nobly fulfilled but also for the poetic enthusiasm with which he formerly defended Mad. Lafarge. Some few speeches were pronounced on his tomb and all was calm.

A French horse Gladiator has just gained the Derby at Epsom, and we were obliged of necessity to celebrate this great victory gained by France over England. The happy owner threw his hat in the air and executed a pas de triumph. The Jockey Club was illuminated and the delighted sportsmen embraced each other on the Boulevard with tears of joy in their eyes. It was the joy of delirium of frenzy. A fanatic exclaimed that it was our revenge for Waterloo, and the crowd joined in the chorus singing. Non, jamais en France, jamais l'Anglais ne regnera. It is a happy epoch after all, in which political rivalries are settled in this manner when the glory of a nation depends on the swiftness of a horse, what promises it holds out for the future. Cruel war will gradually disappear from our manners, and if in a few years the Schleswig Holstein question is not terminated, a special congress will unite on the race courses of Chantilly and Longchamps: M. de Bismark will mount Gladiator, M. Ponilly Merisdorf will mount Gontran, and after a brilliant race the problem of the duchies will be settled to the satisfaction of every one and without shedding any more blood. Much enthusiasm has also been exhibited at the sale of M. de Morny's gallery. The modern French School has not perhaps had all the success that was hoped for, but in revenge the other pictures fetched immense success. Rembrandt's Guilder was sold for £6,200 to the duke of Salamanca.

Liszt have never been so much talked of till lately. Liszt the great Pianist has just entered the Vatican as an Abbot. The destiny of this great artist is very singular. At ten years of age he was taken all through Europe and every one feted the Wonderful Child. After having passed through all the emotions of a glorious existence he now enters the calm of life and suddenly breaks with the world where brilliant triumphs awaited him. The friends of the illustrious artist were very astonished at this determination. Religious music has been one of his most serious preoccupations for some time past, and Radical Reform of the Roman Chapel which he desires to effect, could only be accomplished by him in the conditions in which he now finds himself. Besides everyone knows that religious ideas have always dominated in this ardent soul. If Liszt succeeds in withdrawing religious music from the depths beneath which it is submerged, he will have rendered a real service to Art. Liszt's existence before turning priest was somewhat stormy. His daughter married M. Emile Olivier, she is now dead, he had this child by Mad. d'Agoult well known in the literary world under the predomine of Daniel Sterne. His life is a pure legend to which must be attributed the strange resolution to bury himself in a cloister.

We read almost every day in the journals that a sum of 50 frs. has been paid into the public treasury by way of restitution; these sorts of restitutions are fashionable in other countries besides France, and a German diplomatist has related to me a very singular history, apropos of this. A statesman of his country desired that the public should believe that his administration rendered the people better, he was much astonished one day that no restitution had been effected since he had arrived in office. He sent for his Secretary-General and asked an explanation? But all the funds destined for this service were employed by your predecessor! replied the Sec. General. What funds? What service? You do not understand me said the impatient minister—Pardon! Your Excellency forgets that if the funds destined for restitutions is carried to the budget of expenses, the restitutions are afterwards entered on the budget of receipts, and if your Excellency desires restitutions, they must come out of your own pocket. In France a great deal of money is restituted, and I once knew an honest man who, thinking he was about to die remitted to his confessor 7.50 fr. which he had wronged the Government of in the course of a long administrative career; he did not die and for some years afterwards boasted of his probity. However, one fine evening when he was boasting, some one replied dryly; I thought you had always been an honest man, I regret to see, I was mistaken.

What! said the astonished restitutor.

Certainly, if you had to restitute, you must previously have stolen.

A mystification is being counted at London just now of which the public as usual will be the victims. Some clever forgers have fabricated the will of Booth, who assassinated Lincoln and naturally seek to have it printed, it is supposed will contain curious revelations. What an eternal child is the public!

Mlle. Theresa, the fashionable singer has accomplished what neither lost liberty as violated laws was able to effect; she has caused blood to flow. The other day at the Alcazar d'été where she sings every evening, the director announced that she was ill and could not sing, but the public will not believe in the sickness of a favorite and the tumult was immense, the police interfered, and was received with a volley of bottles the police drew their swords and the incident terminated by a number of arrests. The character of a people may be seen as well in little things as in great. What can we think of a nation who understands order and liberty in this manner.

We must confess that we are a nation of tyrants and slaves.

Letter to the Editor of the "Evening Mail."

HONGKONG, 28th July, 1865.

DEAR SIR,—With reference to a communication, which appeared in your own and contemporary's columns from the gratuitous Auctioneer of the Library Committee, we beg leave to remark that the whole truth is n'ought, is not stated, inasmuch as it was on advertising to Commission that the Sub-Committee said the funds are low and could not afford it, therefore any remuneration allowed must depend upon result of the Auction sale. At all events whether or not the generous minded auctioneer made a voluntary and gratuitous proffer of his services it is readily perceived that such services cannot in any manner benefit the Library, but certainly the contrary. Had he followed the example of his brother Auctioneer and declined all connection with the Sale his conduct would appear to the public in a more commendable and disinterested light.

We were quite near enough to the Auctioneer and the Sub-Committee, to hear distinctly what conversation passed between them at the Meeting, and from that are enabled to estimate the value of the former's boasted generosity, which even the Sub-Committee, we humbly think, did wrong in stipulating for or in accepting gratuitous services at all. As the labourer is worthy of his hire and a man who is not to be paid for his work can scarcely, according to human nature, be expected, more particularly during the Dog Days, to exert himself to the extent, as the labourer who is assured of remuneration.

But how comes it Mr. Editor that the Sub-Committee have subsequently authorized this said Auctioneer to dispose of the Library privately? while that privilege was contemptuously denied to Subscribers at the Meeting, who, with the express view of its continuance offered to purchase and moreover, it may be enquired, in virtue of what right or Authority do Mr. Mitchell, the Treasurer and partizans order a Sale of the property and dissolution of the Institution. Such proceeding is most unfair towards the general body of Subscribers as well as discreditable to those whose Acts bring the Victoria Library to a close.

But the Treasurer is still liable to be brought to Account, it being presumed there were not a sufficient number of subscribers present at the Meeting to make the sub-committees proceedings binding.

And therefore as your remarks of the 8th inst., form an excellent Commentary upon the whole Library question, or mismanagement, we shall not now trespass on your valuable time; thanking you for the friendly manner in which you have justly advocated the Library's claim to public attention,

We are Dear Sir,
Yours Truly,
A FEW SUBSCRIBERS OF THE VICTORIA LIBRARY.

Loss of the S. S. "Fokien."

THE Steam-ship Fokien was despatched from Shanghai at 2.15 P.M. on Thursday the 13th inst. Captain Johnson reports that the steamer made a quick run down the river, and though the weather had been very stormy all day, it moderated rapidly, and when night set in, it was calm, pleasant, and clear with a bright moon shining. The vessel continued her course under very favorable circumstances, running to the Eastward of the Island of Chinsan and steering a course to the Eastward of the Island of Video. Up to Chinsan, Captain Johnson found the current setting the vessel rapidly to the Eastward and make allowance for that, steered to make the Easternmost island of the Fisherman's Group, calculating that the current would set the vessel to the line of Video. The orders were to keep a look out for this latter island which is high and very prominent and one of the chief landmarks of steamers running on the Coast: soon after the Chief Officer reported that Video was in sight. This was at 11.20 P.M. The officer also reported that he had seen the other islands of the Fisherman's group along the horizon. Captain Johnson then looked and also made out Video as he supposed. The third officer and two quarter-masters on watch, all of whom have been a long time on board the steamer, gave the same statement; that it was Video. At this point the horizon was not clear, a low mist having shut out the view horizontally, but it did not rise high and the summit of what all supposed to be Video towered above, and they were rapidly approaching the island. At this moment Capt. Johnson changed his mind which hitherto had been, to run to the Eastward of Video, his reason for so doing, being that there are some low rocks near its Eastern side, called the four sisters and in the mist that hung over the water he found they might not be seen. So he decided to run near to Video on its Western side where there are no dangers of any kind. Accordingly his order a to the Chief-Officer were, to take the bearings of Video and report when it bore East. The mist increased, and Capt. Johnson stated that he had lost sight of Video, but the mate declared that he had kept watch of it and plainly saw the loom of the land which was no doubt true, as it was subsequently visible as the fog cleared away, though it always remained thick on the horizon, with a bright night overhead. Presently the Chief officer reported that Video bore East when Captain Johnson went to the Pilot house and changed the course to South, and sent the Chief officer to the Engine Room to take the revolutions made, and one of the quarter Masters to the bows. At this instant 11.30 P.M. the fog lifted before them like a curtain, and to their horror, they saw an island mast-head high, but a short distance ahead on to which the steamer was going at the rate of about 12 miles an hour. Captain Johnson rang the bell to stop the engine instantly which was promptly obeyed but it was too late. The Steamer ran or rather slid crashing and tearing over the outer ledge and came with great force, bows against the rocks, knocking the bows in and tearing them to splinters. The anchor was let go, fortunately as it held her bows up on the rocks, and every effort was at once put forth to save life. Including passengers and crew there were over 200 lives on board. The steamer was well provided with boats. System and order were to a certain extent at once established; people were passed into the boats and pulled to the rocks where they were able to land and in twenty minutes they were all saved and on shore, but (with a very few exceptions) with nothing except what they stood in. They just escaped from the wreck in time, as within twenty minutes from the time that the vessel struck the bows were under water; in fact nearly the whole vessel was sunk except the after part which was kept afloat a while longer until the weight of water burst in the after water tight bulk-head and she sunk in 10 to 20 fathoms of water.

The facts appears to be:—That the current changed soon after Captain Johnson shaped his course for the Easternmost of the Fisherman's group and set the vessel to the Westward instead of to the Eastward. The Island that all on the look out supposed to be Video, was not Video, but the larger one of the Fisherman Group near the Tripod, which though much smaller and far less prominent than Video, was magnified by the peculiar state of the Atmosphere, until all the experienced men on board were deceived and never hesitated to pronounce it to be Video. Having made it beyond doubt as they supposed, there was now no hesitation in keeping on so long as the island was in sight. The haze had shut out from view the lower islands towards which they were unknowingly running.

Intimations.

OH, sound the Lyre, the Tum-Tum and the Gong!
Awake, Ye Slumbering Denizens of Hong-Kong!
Professor Wheeler, Artist of renown,
From New York, Boston, San Francisco Towns
And other places famed in Song and Science
Has now arrived, with every new appliance,
Combined with those employed time immemorial
Prepared to exercise the Art Tonsorial.
Others there are in town who ply the Shears,
But send their trusting Victims forth in tears,
With mutilated locks their friends all stare
And ask:—"Why, who the Devil lost your hair?"
Why allow unskilled, and longtailed Chinese
Your Head to butcher, and your Purse to "squeeze?"
Upon this Isle there is not a Hair Dresser,
Can justly claim the title of Professor,
Save Wheeler, who has spent his days in toil,
In Chemic Research "burnt the Midnight Oil;
And now by acclamation near and far
Of other Artists justly takes the Par.
Hasten, Ye Unkempt, to his gay Saloo,
Frequented by the Elite and Ton!
Dread no rebuff!—Noblesse or Parvenu,
Impartially he'll "Cut," "Shave," or Shampoo."
With Style, Despatch and Neatness, at a Rate
It actually seems ridiculous to state;
Being no more—O Ye Illustrious Band!—
Really.—No more than Fifty Cents A Head!
Come to the Hotel Oriental! there,
Ready to Shave, or Dye, or Cut your Hair,
Of blessings great benefactor the Dealer,
From Morn till Night, you'll find
PROFESSOR WHEELER.

PENINSULAR & ORIENTAL STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY.

NOTICE OF REDUCTION OF PASSAGE MONEY.

IN the year 1857 the Directors made a considerable reduction in the Company's rates of Passage Money, which continued in force till 1861.
In that year, owing to the extraordinary rise in the Cost and Freight of Coals, and the enhanced price of all descriptions of Naval Stores, the Directors were reluctantly compelled to return to the rates of Passage Money previously in force. They are now happy to state that a decrease in the price of Coal and other expenses of Steam Navigation enables them to reduce the Company's Passage rates to the undernoted scale, which will take effect from and after the 1st June next, viz:—

From Hongkong to—
Suez	$460
Malta	510
Marseilles	530
Gibraltar	530
Southampton	550
Reserved Rates for Single Persons.
Suez	$920
Malta	1,020
Marseilles	1,060
Gibraltar	1,080
Southampton	1,100
Reserved Rates for Married Couples.
Suez	$1,180
Malta	1,360
Gibraltar	1,340
Marseilles	1,388
Southampton	1,420

The charges for Children are in proportion to the above.
The above rates are exclusive of the amount payable to the Egyptian Transit Administration for conveyance of Passengers through Egypt, viz:—

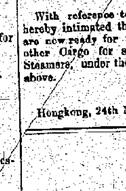

For First-class Passengers	$32
Children above three and under ten years, half-fare.

By Order of the Managing Directors,
THOS. SUTHERLAND,
Superintendent.
Hongkong, 30th May, 1864.

The Times on the new Order in Council.

The Church of Rome undertakes to exercise a special superintendence over the disciples of her own faith in partibus infidelium; and even Mr. John Stuart Mill, in his popular Essay upon Liberty, excepts "barbarians" from the general right of free thought, and word, and will. The exception might seem to be detrimental to the general argument, since it would leave to Mr. Mill, or to the dogmatist who for the moment might stand in his shoes, the power of determining who are barbarians, and consequently who are persons entitled to liberty. But, in truth, this question, who is a barbarian? is a real, practical, everyday difficulty. When English subjects go abroad among civilized nations we surrender them to the protection and restraint of the laws of those nations, and if they happen to be hanged, secundum legem terræ we take no thought about it. But if they go among "barbarians," where it may happen that they are scalped, impaled, or cut to pieces upon crosses for no crime known to Christendom, then we consider it necessary to follow the errant Briton all through the barbarian territory with the protection of British law, and also to restrain him by the terror of civilized punishments. This is both in theory and in practice a matter of great difficulty. In the first place we have no right, according to the ordinary law of nations, to claim any special exemption for an Englishman from the laws of the natives with whom he voluntarily dwells, among whom he has perhaps intruded himself; and, secondly, we have very imperfect means of following the occasionally eccentric course of those of our countrymen who do go among barbarians, and, indeed, we are very likely not to see their offences, and not to be in a position to punish their crimes. Our law has dealt with this subject in a vague and tentative manner. It does not declare that Queen Victoria shall have jurisdiction to set up Courts and punish offences in the Empire of China, or the territory of Abyssinia, or in the Empire of Turkey, for we have no more right to claim such a jurisdiction, except so far as we have extorted it by treaty, than we have to claim it in France or Spain. But our British Parliaments, like ancient Popes, have given our Queen a quasi right of conquest over all barbarians. Parliament has enacted that "it shall be lawful for Her Majesty to hold, exercise, and enjoy any power or jurisdiction which Her Majesty has or may have in any country or place out of Her Majesty's dominions, in as ample a manner as if Her Majesty had acquired such power by the cession or conquest of territory." For the purpose, therefore, of exercising judicial authority over her own subjects in China and Japan Queen Victoria is by our law in precisely the same position as if she had conquered those two Empires.

This explanation may, perhaps, be necessary to some persons before they are able to comprehend the purpose of a very long and closely printed Order in Council, recently published. By this Order the Queen of England establishes a Supreme Court, with a Judge, an Assistant-Judge, and a Law Secretary, in a suburb of the Emperor of China's city of Shanghai and also establishes a series of Provincial Courts throughout the two Empires of China and Japan. Queen Victoria is, in fact, doing in the Empires of China and Japan, and in a judicial way, precisely what the Pope and Cardinal Wiseman did some time since in an ecclesiastical way in this benighted land of England. We, who are an excitable people, were very angry and called it Papal Aggression; the Chinese, who are not an excitable but a remarkably practical people, are not likely to be at all angry. Neither step was perhaps very complimentary, either to us as heretics, or to the Chinese as barbarians; but as our Supreme Court obtains the power to try capital offences, the possible spectacle of a man hanged by a Court of English jurisdiction within a dependency upon the Imperial city of Shanghai will be a more startling exercise of foreign jurisdiction than any which was likely to be offered by an Archbishop of Westminster. We have tested, by an instance familiar to ourselves, this exercise of English prerogative in two foreign States in order that our readers may more easily comprehend its very exceptional nature, and by no means for any purpose of unfavourable criticism. It is a measure which has become absolutely necessary for the preservation of peace and for the protection of our own good name in China and Japan. It is what we have been ourselves urging forward upon every recurring occasion of some unpunished outrage committed by an European upon Chinese victims. Henceforward we may hope that there will be some real protection for the native Chinese against the predatory violence of the European adventurers who make marauding incursions into the country, and even against the more respectable European traveller who fires off his shotted guns to frighten the market-boat out of his way. Henceforward every Consular Court is to be a Provincial Court armed with power to try civil cases up to a moderate amount, and to take cognizance of misdemeanours, and punish, with or without assessors or jurymen, to the extent of 12 months' imprisonment. In addition to this, as we read the Order, every Provincial Court may, in case of a grave offence coming before it, be rendered for the occasion a branch of the Supreme Court—the Judge or Assistant-Judge attending to preside at the trial. If we are right in this interpretation it is a very important alteration of the old system; for if it had been necessary to try every grave offence at Shanghai a murder at Nagasaki would have been as unpunishable under the new as it was under the old system. We fear, however, that the Order in Council has been somewhat loosely drawn in this respect, and that the absolute right of a rehearing before the Judge of the Supreme Court after any decision by the Assistant-Judge may tend to create complications under which great criminals may still escape punishment. It is satisfactory to know, however, that so far as British subjects are concerned, a written Code has now been put forth to which the Chinese and Japanese authorities may appeal when crimes they are not allowed to punish are committed. Crimes which are capital in England are capital also before the Supreme Court of Shanghai, and other crimes and offences which have their punishment here are to be visited with a like punishment there—subject, of course, to the Royal prerogative of Mercy, and in cases of death to a confirmation by the Crown, acting by its Ministers resident in the country.

There are, however, certain special offences introduced into the jurisdiction of the Supreme and Provincial British Courts of China and Japan which do not obtain in England, but are especially required by the circumstances of these countries. The punishments affixed to these offences cannot be too soon known to the persons whom they are likely to concern. Acts of individuals, which have been most fruitful in contentions and little hostilities, and even great wars in the Chinese and Japanese waters, have been outrages on person or property; contraventions, commonly with violence, of the Customs' regulations of the Chinese; forcing trade at forbidden ports in Japan and insults offered to the ceremonies and religion of the people. Outrages on persons and property are now sufficiently provided for. Contraventions of Customs' regulations are still left unpunished, and it is an omission in the new scheme that the Provincial Court is not directed to protect the Chinese officers of Customs in the execution of their duty. The framers of this Order seem determined, however, to avoid future disputes with Japan, since they give power to punish with two years' imprisonment and 10,000 dollars' fine, and seizure of his vessel, any British subject attempting to force trade with Japan at other than the treaty ports. Another very important provision enables the Minister resident in China to frame regulations for the government of British subjects in China, and imposes fine and three months' imprisonment as the penalty of disobedience. This is the most doubtful part of the Order. It is true that these regulations are supposed to be referred home to receive the assent of the Secretary of State; but as there is an exception in cases of exigency there is reason to fear that the power will afford too wide a scope for the too active meddling of diplomacy, and bring us periodical crops of mercantile grievances from the East. Some such power is undoubtedly necessary to exist, but it will be contrary to all experience if in this form it be found to work well. A much more certainly expedient provision is that which denounces against any British subject who shall take service either with or against the Emperor of China, two years' imprisonment, 5,000 dollars' fine, and perpetual deportation. One other special enactment requires to be noted. It is that which ordains that any British subject publicly deriding, mocking, or insulting any religious ceremony, service, or feast in China or Japan, shall be liable to summary sentence, to imprisonment with or without hard labour for any period not exceeding two years. It is a useful and a necessary threat; but it is strange that perpetual deportation, which would be a remedy as well as a punishment, is in this case omitted.

Upon the whole, this very comprehensive scheme of judicature has been well drawn up, and the great and multifarious subjects it comprehends have been treated with much ability. We have indicated some particulars in which we think it might be improved, and in which it will be found faulty in working. The great necessity, however, is that it should be supplemented by some arrangement for combined action among the Treaty Powers. The immediate effect of the promulgation of this Order at Shanghai will be that the "rowdies" of the East will declare themselves Americans, or Portuguese, or Germans, according to circumstances, but will always declare, notwithstanding the registry, that they are not British subjects. The new Order is an important step; but to render the subject certain and the remedy complete we must go further. If one Treaty Power can erect this complete judicial hierarchy in the territories of independent States, all others may do so. It is not possible for all the Treaty Powers to combine to have one Supreme Court and one set of provincial Courts, whereof there may be different Judges, if they please, and different laws administered to different suitors, according to their nationalities, but whereof the jurisdiction as a Court might be universal over all foreigners claiming exemption from Chinese and Japanese tribunals? This Court would spread a net large enough to catch all the European vagabonds, but now, while each nation makes its separate cast, the worst fish of prey escape between the little independent nets. No doubt, however, there are difficulties in the way of such an arrangement as this. We can only hope that some general scheme may ultimately be perfected, and meanwhile, thank our own Government for the step now taken to clear our national conscience before the face of our barbarian allies.—The Times.

ST. SAVIOURS SCHOOLS, Pottinger Street corner of Wellington Street

IT is most respectfully intimated to Parents and Guardians, that the New Schools lately erected in Pottinger Street corner of Wellington Street, in a style suitable to the wants of the climate and managed with a view of meeting the peculiar want of this Commercial Colony, are now in full operation.

The system of tuition adopted in these Schools is purely Commercial, Arithmetic, Book-keeping, Geometry, Geography, History, Grammar, Composition, Foreign Languages, Music, and Drawing, are taught by proficient resident Masters. No objection is made to the admission of any Pupil on the score of religion nor will the religious feelings of any pupil be tampered with.

A suite of large Airy Rooms, has been opened in the same Schools for the reception of Boarders Pupils. To Boys leaving home for the first time, the change will be made as easy as can be by the kindness which shall be shown them and by the exclusion of everything materially coercive.

Further particulars may be known by applying to the Principal J. Borgazzi, who earnestly desires that communications be made before any boarder pupil is sent to the Schools.

Extracts.

The Times on the new Order in Council.

The Church of Rome undertakes to exercise a special superintendence over the disciples of her own faith in partibus infidelium; and even Mr. John Stuart Mill, in his popular Essay upon Liberty, excepts "barbarians" from the general right of free thought, and word, and will. The exception might seem to be detrimental to the general argument, since it would leave to Mr. Mill, or to the dogmatist who for the moment might stand in his shoes, the power of determining who are barbarians, and consequently who are persons entitled to liberty. But, in truth, this question, who is a barbarian? is a real, practical, every-day difficulty. When English subjects go abroad among civilized nations we surrender them to the protection and restraint of the laws of those nations, and if they happen to be hanged, secundum legem terræ we take no thought about it. But if they go among "barbarians," where it may happen that they are scalped, impaled, or cut to pieces upon crosses for no crime known to Christendom, then we consider it necessary to follow the errant Briton all through the barbarian territory with the protection of British law, and also to restrain him by the terror of civilized punishments. This is both in theory and in practice a matter of great difficulty. In the first place, we have no right, according to the ordinary law of nations, to claim any special exemption for an Englishman from the laws of the natives with whom he voluntarily dwells, among whom he has perhaps intruded himself; and, secondly, we have very imperfect means of following the occasionally eccentric course of those of our countrymen who do go among barbarians, and, indeed, we are very likely not to see their offences, and not to be in a position to punish their crimes. Our law has dealt with this subject in a vague and tentative manner. It does not declare that Queen Victoria shall have jurisdiction to set up Courts and punish offences in the Empire of China, or the territory of Abyssinia, or in the Empire of Turkey, for we have no more right to claim such a jurisdiction, except so far as we have extorted it by treaty, than we have to claim it in France or Spain. But our British Parliaments, like ancient Popes, have given our Queen a quasi right of conquest over all barbarians. Parliament has enacted that "it shall be "lawful for Her Majesty to hold, exercise, "and enjoy any power or jurisdiction which Her "Majesty has or may have in any country or "place out of Her Majesty's dominions, in as "ample a manner as if Her Majesty had acquired "such power by the cession or conquest of territory." For the purpose, therefore, of exercising judicial authority over her own subjects in China and Japan Queen Victoria is by our law in precisely the same position as if she had conquered those two Empires.

This explanation may, perhaps, be necessary to some persons before they are able to comprehend the purpose of a very long and closely printed Order in Council, recently published. By this Order the Queen of England establishes a Supreme Court, with a Judge, an Assistant-Judge, and a Law Secretary, in a suburb of the Emperor of China's city of Shanghai, and also establishes a series of Provincial Courts throughout the two Empires of China and Japan. Queen Victoria is, in fact, doing in the Empires of China and Japan, and in a judicial way, precisely what the Pope did some time since in an ecclesiastical way in this benighted land of England. We, who are an excitable people, were very angry and called it Papal Aggression; the Chinese, who are not an excitable but a remarkably practical people, are not likely to be at all angry. Neither step was perhaps very complimentary, either to us as heretics, or to the Chinese as barbarians; but as our Supreme Court obtains the power to try capital offences, the possible spectacle of a man hanged by a Court of English jurisdiction within a dependency upon the Imperial city of Shanghai will be a more startling exercise of foreign jurisdiction than any which was likely to be offered by an Archbishop of Westminster. We have tested, by an instance familiar to ourselves, this exercise of English prerogative in two foreign States in order that our readers may more easily comprehend its very exceptional nature, and by no means for any purpose of unfavourable criticism. It is a measure which has become absolutely necessary for the preservation of peace and for the protection of our own good name in China and Japan. It is what we have been ourselves urging forward upon every recurring occasion of some unpunished outrage committed by an European upon Chinese victims. Henceforward we may hope that there will be some real protection for the native Chinese against the predatory violence of the European adventurers who make marauding incursions into the country, and even against the more respectable European traveller who fires off his shotted guns to frighten the market-boat out of his way. Henceforward every Consular Court is to be a Provincial Court armed with power to try civil cases up to a moderate amount, and to take cognizance of misdemeanours, and punish, with or without assessors or jurymen, to the extent of 12 months' imprisonment. In addition to this, as we read the Order, every Provincial Court may, in case of a grave offence coming before it, be rendered for the occasion a branch of the Supreme Court—the Judge or Assistant-Judge attending to preside at the trial. If we are right in this interpretation it is a very important alteration of the old system; for if it had been necessary to try every grave offence at Shanghai a murder at Nagasaki would have been as unpunishable under the new as it was under the old system. We fear, however, that the Order in Council has been somewhat loosely drawn in this respect, and that the absolute right of a rehearing before the Judge of the Supreme Court after any decision by the Assistant-Judge may tend to create complications under which great criminals may still escape punishment. It is satisfactory to know, however, that so far as British subjects are concerned, a written Code has now been put forth to which the Chinese and Japanese authorities may appeal when crimes they are not allowed to punish are committed. Crimes which are capital in England are capital also before the Supreme Court of Shanghai, and other crimes and offences which have their punishment here are to be visited with a like punishment there—subject, of course, to the Royal prerogative of Mercy, and in cases of death to a confirmation by the Crown, acting by its Ministers resident in the country.

There are, however, certain special offences introduced into the jurisdiction of the Supreme and Provincial British Courts of China and Japan which do not obtain in England, but are especially required by the circumstances of these countries. The punishments affixed to these offences cannot be too soon known to the persons whom they are likely to concern. Acts of individuals, which have been most fruitful in contentions and little hostilities, and even great wars in the Chinese and Japanese waters, have been outrages on person or property; contraventions, commonly with violence, of the Customs' regulations of the Chinese; forcing trade at forbidden ports in Japan and insults offered to the ceremonies and religion of the people. Outrages on persons and property are now sufficiently provided for. Contraventions of Customs' regulations are still left unpunished, and it is an omission in the new scheme that the Provincial Court is not directed to protect the Chinese officers of Customs in the execution of their duty. The framers of this Order seem determined, however, to avoid future disputes with Japan, since they give power to punish with two years' imprisonment and 10,000 dollars' fine, and seizure of his vessel, any British subject attempting to force trade with Japan at other than the treaty ports. Another very important provision enables the Minister resident in China to frame regulations for the government of British subjects in China, and imposes fine and three months' imprisonment as the penalty of disobedience. This is the most doubtful part of the Order. It is true that these regulations are supposed to be referred home to receive the assent of the Secretary of State; but as there is an exception in cases of exigency there is reason to fear that the power will afford too wide a scope for the too active meddling of diplomacy, and bring us periodical crops of mercantile grievances from the East. Some such power is undoubtedly necessary to exist, but it will be contrary to all experience if in this form it be found to work well. A much more certainly expedient provision is that which denounces, against any British subject who shall take service either with or against the Emperor of China, two years' imprisonment, 5,000 dollars' fine, and perpetual deportation. One other special enactment requires to be noted. It is that which ordains that any British subject publicly deriding, mocking, or insulting any religious ceremony, service, or feast in China or Japan, shall be liable to summary sentence, to imprisonment with or without hard labour for any period not exceeding two years. It is a useful and a necessary threat; but it is strange that perpetual deportation, which would be a remedy as well as a punishment, is in this case omitted.

Upon the whole, this very comprehensive scheme of judicature has been well drawn up, and the great and multifarious subjects it comprehends have been treated with much ability. We have indicated some particulars in which we think it might be improved, and in which it will be found faulty in working. The great necessity, however, is that it should be supplemented by some arrangement for combined action among the Treaty Powers. The immediate effect of the promulgation of this Order at Shanghai will be that the "rowdies" of the East will declare themselves Americans, or Portuguese, or Germans, according to circumstances, but will always declare, notwithstanding the registry, that they are not British subjects. The new Order is an important step; but to render the subject certain and the remedy complete we must go further. If one Treaty Power can erect this complete judicial hierarchy in the territories of independent States, all others may do so. It is not possible for all the Treaty Powers to combine to have one Supreme Court and one set of provincial Courts, whereof there may be different Judges, if they please, and different laws administered to different suitors, according to their nationalities, but whereof the jurisdiction as a Court might be universal over all foreigners claiming exemption from Chinese and Japanese tribunals? This Court would spread a net large enough to catch all the European vagabonds, but now, while each nation makes its separate cast, the worst fish of prey escape between the little independent nets. No doubt, however, there are difficulties in the way of such an arrangement as this. We can only hope that some general scheme may ultimately be perfected, and meanwhile, thank our own Government for the step now taken to clear our national conscience before the face of our barbarian allies.—The Times.
